Subject: Completed Investigation ICO OIG-I-536

This investigation was initiated on June 30, 2017. The case involved an allegation that employees in the [redacted] [redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) [redacted] retaliated against a whistleblower and withheld records in responding to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request.

Exemptions 6 & 7(C) Exemptions 6 & 7(C)

[redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) [redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) [redacted]

Exemptions 6 & 7(C)

We determined that the allegations were unsubstantiated. With regard to the retaliation, a review of email messages documented that [redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) employee were addressing perceived performance issues with the individual prior to the individual making protected disclosures to the Chairman and General Counsel. With regard to the FOIA request, it appears that 8 email messages were not provided to the individual. Although our investigative efforts did not determine why messages were not provided, our review of the messages found that they were not different from the messages provided and there is no apparent reason why the [redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) employee would withhold the messages. When interviewed, the [redacted] Exemptions 6 & 7(C) employee explained the process the [redacted] used to create PDF copies of the messages, and it appears the messages were likely inadvertently left out of the responsive documents. Additionally, the original search for the messages was not maintained and we can be certain the duplicate search results are identical.

Subject: Completed Investigation OIG-I-542

This investigation was initiated on February 12, 2018. The case involved an allegation that an employee was improperly reassigned to a detail position with a promise that [redacted] would be promoted at the end of the detail. During the investigation, the OIG was provided additional information involving allegations of other improper promotions of Agency employees.

Regarding the detail allegation, the employee was detailed to a position at [redacted] current grade and later applied for a competitive promotion to the higher grade. We therefore found that the allegation is unsubstantiated. Regarding the allegations of improper promotions, we observe that the approval authorities for promotions are appropriately questioning the eligibility of employees when they approve the promotion. We also observed that there may be an issue with the coding of positions in the systems that are used by the Budget Branch and the Office of Human Resources. This issue is more appropriately addressed in an audit as it does not appear to involve misconduct.

Because no further action is necessary, the case is closed.
